Packages

It is an encapsulation mechanism to group related modules into a single unit.
package is nothing but folder or directory which represents collection of Python modules.

Any folder or directory contains __init__.py file,is considered as a Python package.This file can be empty.

A package can contains sub packages also.